

GONDWANA

Geological Evidence

Scientists know the continents were once joined because they find matching rock layers, mountain ranges and fossils on continents that are now far apart.

These geological similarities show that the landmasses were once connected and later drifted apart over millions of years.

Can you use the geological evidence to show how the continents were once connected?